A Citizen's Educational Creed

I BELIEVE that education is the strong defense of a free nation, and that ignorance is a curse to any people. I believe that the free public-school system of the United States is the best guarantee of the rights vouchsafed to us by the Constitution. I believe, further, that the public schools of the land are the cradle of our democracy, and that in the classrooms and upon the playgrounds, where the sons and daughters of the street sweeper and railroad magnate, of day laborer and multi-millionaire, meet upon an equal footing and stand upon their own individual merits, the lessons of democracy and fraternity are best taught. I believe that the hope of America is in her youth, and that the battle ground of the world is the heart of the child, and that government fails at its source when it ceases to make ample provision for the development and nurture of its future citizens.—Fred L. Shaw, Superintendent of Public Instruction of South Dakota.
